

Sample timetable

Each course involves about ten hours of work each week. This includes attending classes (three to four hours per course) and working independently, either at home or at University (six to seven hours per course).

The diagram below is an example of what a weekly timetable might look like. It's up to you how you manage your work and where you study – but it is very important to make good use of your time outside classes and to plan ahead so you can complete coursework on time.

This is an example only.

■ Classes    ■ Independent study

	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
8 - 9			At home working on PHIL 103 assignment	Preparing for PHIL 103 tutorial over breakfast with a classmate
9 - 10		In the Information Commons researching for SOCIOL 105 essay		PHIL 103 tutorial	In the Arts Labs working on ENGLISH 112 essay
10 - 11	In the Information Commons researching for SOCIOL 105 essay	In the Library reading for PHIL 103	SOCIOL 105 lecture	MĀORI 103 class	SOCIOL 105 lecture	In the Information Commons working on ENGLISH 112 essay
11 - 12			In the Library doing MĀORI 103 homework		In the Library reading for SOCIOL 105	In the Information Commons working on SOCIOL 105 essay
12 - 1			Reading for ENGLISH 112 tutorial over lunch	See tutor about PHIL 103 assignment
1 - 2	In the Library preparing for MĀORI 103 class	PHIL 103 lecture			SOCIOL 105 tutorial
2 - 3		In the Library doing MĀORI 103 homework	ENGLISH 112 tutorial		PHIL 103 lecture
3 - 4	MĀORI 103 class	MĀORI 103 class	In the Arts Labs working on SOCIOL 105 essay	At home doing MĀORI 103 homework
4 - 5	ENGLISH 112 lecture	In the Library reading for ENGLISH 112 essay			In the Information Commons working on PHIL 103 assignment
5 - 6			ENGLISH 112 lecture	At home reading for ENGLISH 112
6 - 7

THE UNIVERSITY
OF AUCKLAND

FACULTY OF ARTS

Te Wānanga Kura Tāngata