Welcome to the University of Auckland

We're thrilled you've chosen to take the next step of your academic journey with us.

This booklet contains key information about:

- What to expect at your Faculty Orientation Day
- Student events and programmes
- Support services available on campus
- Where to turn if you need a little extra help or advice

Please read on for a preview into this new chapter of your life.

Your dean looks forward to officially welcoming you at your faculty pōwhiri.

I wish you every success during your time with us, and look forward to meeting you as a student or as one of our many successful alumni.

ONLINE ORIENTATION

In order to help you prepare for your first semester at the University of Auckland, log on to your Online Orientation, which contains six useful modules. Each module will give you information you need as a first-year student in a fun, interactive and engaging way!

Topics covered:

- Academic preparation (eg, tips on managing your time and course readings)
- Accommodation
- Specific information for international students and students from outside Auckland
- Interactive campus maps
- Student essentials such as getting your Student ID, logging into Canvas and student email
- Budgeting and money matters, including information on StudyLink
- UniGuide programme and mentor support
- Tips from your faculty you won't hear anywhere else

So look out for your Online Orientation modules. Info about these will be sent by email. You can also check out:

Pōwhiri

Pōwhiri is the welcome ceremony onto a marae. In this case it will also be an official welcome for all new students to the University of Auckland. It removes the tapu (sacredness) of the manuhiri (visitors) to make them one with the tangata whenua (home people).

Student Ambassadors wearing blue t-shirts will be there on your Faculty Orientation Day to help guide you and prepare you.

If you are knowledgeable in Te Reo Māori or any language other than English, you might want to consider being a kaikōrero (speaker on behalf of the students)/ kaiwhakahoki i te karanga (responder to the karanga). If you do wish to speak, please let one of the Student Ambassadors know well in advance.

Diagnostic English Language Needs Assessment (DELNA)

All first-year students, regardless of their language background, must have their academic English assessed at the beginning of their studies.

You'll begin with the DELNA Screening and may be directed to the Diagnosis so that DELNA staff can advise you, if necessary, on further developing your academic English language skills.

Note that your faculty may require you to act on DELNA advice.

You will have the opportunity to complete your DELNA Screening during your Faculty Orientation Day.

www.delna.auckland.ac.nz

UniGuides

The UniGuide Programme aims to help make your first semester easier by connecting you with a senior student who can show you the ropes. You will meet your UniGuide at your Faculty Orientation Day, after the pōwhiri. Your UniGuide will take you to your faculty sessions and DELNA Screening and show you around the campus!

Class representatives

Every class needs a voice, and that's what the AUSA Class Rep system provides. But we need you! Stand for election at the beginning of the semester to become your class's rep. You could be responsible for creating change that helps you and your classmates, all while learning more about the University, your fellow students and your lecturers. Plus, it's a great leadership opportunity for your CV!

Clubs Awards

Clubs are a huge part of University life and we hope to recognise those who have shown significant achievements. Be on the lookout for nominations for 2017 Club Awards in August. You can also vote for your favourite club in the People's Choice Award! www.auckland.ac.nz/clubs

Volunteer Hub

Volunteer for a wide range of organisations and community projects as well as for various initiatives on campus. You can also get official University recognition for your volunteering through the Leadership and Service Award.

- The internet
- Student email
- Library databases, electronic journals and electronic books
- Student Services Online
- Copy and print service (CAPS)
- Computers
- Student file storage

Student Services Online

Student Services Online enables you to apply for admission, enrol in classes, plan your timetable, update your details and more.

www.studentservices.auckland.ac.nz

Student email

All students are provided with a free University student email account. Your email account is one of the University's main ways of officially communicating with you; this means you must check your student email regularly.

www.auckland.ac.nz/email

Canvas

Canvas is the University's learning management system. Find information about your courses, access readings and communicate with your lecturers, tutors and classmates.

<https://canvas.auckland.ac.nz>

Internet and wireless

Internet access is provided on all campuses using your username and password from desktop computers, laptops and mobile devices.

www.auckland.ac.nz/wireless

Copying and printing

Copiers and printers are available in all libraries, computer labs and information commons. There is a charge to copy and print. You can top up your copy and print balances by using one of the self-service ePOS stations in any information commons or other locations on each campus.

www.auckland.ac.nz/copy-print

Apps and tools

The University provides mobile apps. Use the University app to find out how to get around campus, stay up-to-date with the latest news, get answers to your questions, and more. Use the Library app to search the catalogue, check your account and book computers in the Kate Edger Information Commons. A range of Google apps are also available.

www.auckland.ac.nz/apps-tools

Software

Some software is available to students to download for free or for a fee, including Microsoft Office 365.

www.auckland.ac.nz/software

File saving and sharing

All enrolled students are provided with free unlimited Google Drive and University file storage that is regularly backed up. You should regularly save your work and maintain multiple copies. The Web Dropoff Box allows easy sharing of executable files and/or large files which would be difficult to transfer via email.

www.auckland.ac.nz/file-storage

http://webdropoff.auckland.ac.nz

Computer facilities

The University provides computers for students' academic use. Computer facilities are located on all campuses in faculty computer labs, libraries, and information commons. The courses you are enrolled in determine which computing facilities and additional software you will be able to access. Laptops are available to borrow from Information Commons Helpdesks.

www.auckland.ac.nz/computers

Lecture and TV recordings

Some lectures are recorded so you can review them in your own time, or catch-up if you have missed one. The University provides access to recorded digital television content from a range of sources.

www.auckland.ac.nz/recordings

Safe computing

The University aims to provide a safe and secure computing experience and has policies, standards and guidelines for computer use. You are expected to follow policy and advice that protects devices, information, and identity. It is prohibited to use, download or copy unlicensed digital files in any format, or to plagiarise material accessed from the internet.

www.auckland.ac.nz/safe-computing

IT help

You can get computer assistance and training from a number of places, including computer labs and resource centres in faculties, and Libraries and Learning Services. Information Commons Helpdesks are located on the City, Grafton, Epsom and Tāmaki campuses.

SOMETIMES A KISS IS MORE THAN JUST A KISS

Meningococcal disease is a serious infection which can be transferred from person to person through contact with saliva, such as kissing, sharing drink bottles, sharing cigarettes, or coughing.

It's important to be aware of meningococcal disease, especially if you're flatting, living in a hall of residence or staying in a hostel.
