"Diversity Abroad is important because as a society we need to understand different perspectives, ideas, and ways of thinking and doing things that are all equally valid. The cultural diversity at the University of Auckland made me feel much more welcome. Not only was I able to experience living in New Zealand, but I also got a chance to see little parts of other cultures and countries through the people around me."

Taylor Maruno is a Study Abroad student from Pacific Lutheran University in Washington, originally from Honolulu, Hawaii. She was the recipient of the Diversity Abroad & University of Auckland Scholarship.
