Welcome to The University of Auckland

Welcome to the School of Counselling, Human Services and Social Work at The University of Auckland, Faculty of Education.

Postgraduate study is the opportunity to advance your knowledge and skills, analyse and review your practice, research aspects of your work and keep up to date with current research, literature and best practice.

The School brings together academic staff with expertise in counselling, social work, professional supervision, human services, special education, disability services, youth work, sociology, social policy, migration and refugee studies, social services management and leadership and workforce development.

We offer postgraduate programmes in social work, counselling and professional supervision, and are committed to the teaching, scholarship, research and best practice in these disciplines, with our research based around three distinct areas of focus:

- workforce dynamics
- evaluation and effective practice
- leadership and management.

Our graduates can be found working in a broad range of settings including community agencies, mental health, social work agencies, Corrections, schools, private practice, academic environments and specialised fields such as palliative care, addictions and working with refugees.

We believe that people of integrity who possess excellent skills, have a strong ethical base, and a commitment to social justice can make a positive difference supporting those who face challenges to lead fulfilling lives.

“E raka te mauī, e raka te katau

A community can use all the skills of its people”

We invite you to join our postgraduate study community.

Counselling

When you apply to study Counselling at The University of Auckland, you are seeking entry to a highly regarded postgraduate programme. Counselling education has been established at The University of Auckland for well over thirty years. We have a strong presence and reputation in the field, with dedicated staff who are passionate about making a difference. We do this in a supportive and inclusive environment that embraces students from a variety of professional and ethnic backgrounds.

Why study Counselling at postgraduate level?

Studying Counselling at this level will allow you to develop soundly-based and creative counselling skills, to examine in depth the inter-related components of theory, research, and practice, and to develop the knowledge, understandings and research skills to reflect effectively on your own practice. These vital components will help you to make a direct contribution to the counselling-related research environment as well as enhancing your effectiveness as a practitioner.

A qualification at this level also offers you opportunities to practice in a wide range of settings. Graduates of the programme work in a variety of settings including school and tertiary counselling, counselling agencies in the community, private practice, pastoral care in church communities, workplace counselling, family therapy, consultation and counsellor education.

Some graduates also continue their studies at doctoral level through the PhD and EdD programmes.

Most of our students are busy professionals for whom it is not practical to study fulltime. For this reason, classes are scheduled at times to suit such as after 4pm during the week, and on Saturdays. We also offer popular special topics as block courses to meet the needs of students and of the counselling community.

Doctoral study – PhD and EdD

Counsellors have two options for doctoral study:

Doctor of Education (EdD): The EdD is designed specifically for working educators and organised around the study needs of fulltime professionals. This is a cohort-based programme where you will benefit from the support of cohort teachers and peers in addition to your two supervisors.

The EdD is made up of two parts. Part I is a part-time, two-year guided, cohort-based programme during which you produce your own individual research portfolio consisting of four supervised research projects: a critical literature review; project design; a paper for publication; and a detailed proposal. Part II is a thesis, which builds on the work completed to a high standard in Part I and includes an oral examination.

Doctor of Philosophy (PhD): A PhD requires an extensive programme of independent study at an advanced level. The focus of this qualification is on an original piece of research that advances both scholarship and practice in a specific discipline.

Your research will involve an in-depth investigation, with ongoing supervisor support. A PhD enables candidates to provide leadership in their professional communities through the advancement and dissemination of knowledge, expertise and skills. It is also excellent preparation for an academic career.

A PhD involves both a thesis and an oral examination. It does not normally include coursework.

Master of Counselling

The MCouns is designed for people who are seeking the knowledge and skills of an advanced qualification in Counselling. The programme will enable you to make a transition from teaching, social work, or another related profession, to become a professional counsellor. It is also a suitable programme if you are an experienced counsellor wishing to enhance your professional learning by developing your skills, knowledge and critical thinking at an advanced level, while gaining a high quality postgraduate qualification in Counselling.

Through the MCouns you will examine and develop the inter-related components essential to effective counselling practice – theory, research, advanced skills, and reflexivity. You will gain the skills to utilise theory and research to inform your current and future practice and you will learn research skills and undertake research in an area of interest enabling you to make a direct contribution to the counselling-related research environment. You will develop counselling and facilitation skills, develop personally and professionally, and develop professional identity and leadership skills relevant to your organisational context. Each student is able to tailor learning to their particular background, practice setting and professional goals.

The MCouns is cohort-based. The first part of the programme comprises both core and elective taught courses, and the second part is a research portfolio. You will undertake practicum work in community settings throughout the programme.

You will also work towards the requirements for membership of a professional body such as the New Zealand Association of Counsellors (NZAC) and the anticipated requirements for professional registration.

The Master of Counselling consists of 240 points as follows:

- 90 points: EDPROFST 746, 748, 749, 750 and PROFCOUN 701
- 30 points from EDPROFST 700–757, 760–788, EDUC 702–764, PROFCOUN 702–704, 707, PROFSUPV 704 or 30 points from a 700 level course in another subject as approved by the Associate Dean (Postgraduate)

and

- 120 points: PROFCOUN 797 Research Portfolio (Prerequisite: EDPROFST 750)

Throughout the programme you are required to undertake counselling practicum in community settings, supervised by experienced counselling practitioners and overseen by University staff. Year One of the programme (fulltime) involves 100 hours of counselling practice in the community and Year Two (fulltime) requires 500 hours of counselling practice in the community. If studying part-time, the required hours of counselling practice in the community are fulfilled over the period of your study.

See pg. 14–17 for courses offered in 2013, timetables and course prescriptions.

Delivery: The MCouns is designed with the needs of practicing professionals in mind and is structured so that you can continue to work while studying part-time. Teaching is mainly face-to-face at Tāmaki Innovation Campus and includes lectures, discussion, student presentations, skills laboratories, seminars, workshops, group work,

Dave McMillan (left) and Sia Sinisa (right) are both school counsellors at Avondale College. Dave has recently completed his Master of Counselling (MCouns) qualification and Sia is studying toward her MCouns part-time.

Dave: "A postgraduate qualification in Counselling helps meet the increasing expectations for Counsellors to have a high standard of professional knowledge, qualifications and sound ethical practice. This counselling programme fit my educational needs and the part-time hours were easy to fit around my family and working life. I was very grateful to also receive a Ministry of Education School Guidance Counsellor Study Award to help fund my study.

"I work fulltime as a School Counsellor at Avondale College and I also run a small counselling practice where I support people with Asperger's Syndrome and their families. With the MCouns, I was able to undertake a lot of research and reading on counselling best practice models for effectively working with people with Asperger's Syndrome, their families, people with intellectual disabilities and adolescents generally. My research was based around the resilience factors of parents and caregivers of people with Asperger's Syndrome.

"I loved being able to study specialised counselling areas that were immediately relevant to the work I do, such as papers on Pastoral Care and Counselling in Schools and Couple Counselling. I liked being able to tailor and target most of my assignments and research into the specialist areas that I am most interested in. This enhanced my motivation to complete the reading and work hard on assignments and my research."

Sia: "I was a secondary teacher for 16 years and did a lot of pastoral care as part of my job. Students would often seek me out to share their problems and ask for advice.

"My passion is to work with young people and I enjoy my work as a school counsellor. I did my initial qualification in Counselling at The University of Auckland and the MCouns is an extension of my previous study with more in-depth learning and case studies and the opportunity to undertake research into an area of concern affecting our young people in New Zealand. My research topic is on the sensitive topic of 'Teenage Suicide', which is an area of special concern among the Pacific Island Community. I like the flexibility in choosing an area of research I am passionate about and I love being able to work with my supervisors one-to-one."

individual investigation and self-directed study. Practicum work in community settings is supervised on-site by counselling practitioners and overseen by University staff. The research portfolio will be guided by at least one supervisor.

Length: While as a 240-point degree the MCouns could be completed in two years, it is normally completed within 3-4 years. The first part can be undertaken fulltime in one year or part-time. The second part, the Research Portfolio, will normally need to be undertaken on a part-time basis.

Entry criteria:

- An approved bachelors degree in education, counselling, nursing, social work or other approved profession with an average grade of B or higher in at least 90 points or equivalent in the most advanced courses taken.
- At least three years practical experience in teaching, counselling, nursing, social work or equivalent approved profession.

An interview supported by referees' statements and evidence of practical experience is required.

Note: It is possible to enter directly into the second year of the Master of Counselling if you have completed the Postgraduate Diploma in Counselling Theory, or the Postgraduate Diploma in Education – Counselling specialisation from The University of Auckland or an approved equivalent qualification. Criteria apply, including sufficient grades and the inclusion of a research methods course. Admission is granted on a case-by-case basis.

Note: This is a limited entry programme. Applicants will undergo a selection process.

Postgraduate Diploma in Counselling Theory

The PGDipCounsTh is equivalent to the first year of the Master of Counselling (see pg. 6). It can be studied as a standalone qualification and will give you a strong, up-to-date knowledge base in the theory relating to counselling. The focus is on the theoretical underpinnings of counselling practice rather than an advanced integration of theory and practice.

If you complete the PGDipCounsTh and gain a grade point average of B or higher you can choose to continue on to the second year of the Master of Counselling to complete the masters qualification. You will need to have included a research methods course (EDPROFST 750 Research and Counselling) in your PGDipCounsTh in order to do this.

The PGDipCounsTh consists of 120 points as follows:

- 90 points: EDPROFST 746, 748, 749, 750, PROF-COUN 701
- 30 points from EDPROFST 700–757, 760–788, EDUC 702–764, PROF-COUN 702–704, 707, PROFSUPV 704 or a 700 level course in another subject as approved by the Associate Dean (Postgraduate)

See pg. 14-17 for courses offered in 2013, timetables and course prescriptions.

Delivery: Teaching is mainly face-to-face at Tāmaki Campus and includes lectures, discussion, skills laboratories, seminars, workshops, student presentations, and individual investigation and self-directed study.

You are also required to undertake practicum work in community settings. This is supervised on-site by counselling practitioners in the field and overseen by University staff.

Length: One year fulltime study, or up to four years' part-time study.

Entry criteria:

- An approved bachelors degree in education, counselling, nursing, social work or other approved profession.
- At least three years practical experience in teaching, counselling, nursing, social work or equivalent approved profession.

An interview supported by referees' statements and evidence of practical experience is required.

Note: Applications for our Counselling programmes close 1 November 2012 for the 2013 intake. There is only one intake of new students per year (Semester One). Applications submitted after the closing date will only be considered if places are available. You can also enquire now about our 2014 intake.

Professional Supervision

Professional or clinical supervision is an important component of your continuing professional development as a health or social services practitioner. Developing your skills as a supervisor is an excellent way to develop your clinical education and leadership skills as well as enhance your portfolio.

Great supervision aids busy professionals to hone their critical thinking skills, stay accountable and get the support to stay at their "learning edge". Through studying our programmes in professional supervision, you will learn how to be a great supervisor alongside colleagues from a range of other disciplines - just as you find yourself working in multidisciplinary teams in health and social services.

The faculty has been teaching supervision to a wide range of professionals for more than 15 years. There is a strong base of research and scholarship to draw on and many opportunities to workshop skills in a supportive learning environment.

The University of Auckland, Faculty of Education leads research and scholarship in the field of professional supervision and has hosted the three highly successful national supervision conferences held in 2000, 2004 and 2010, where leading research and scholarship on supervision has been presented.

What is supervision?

Supervision has been defined in many ways, but is essentially a conversation between professional practitioners, which aims to promote professional learning, reflective practice and to improve the quality of service to users. It is a process that is increasingly important in health and human services.

The process of supervision occurs within a professional relationship. One person, the supervisor, assists the other person, the supervisee, to reflect on and explore practice issues and maintain competence in their professional practice.

Professional (or clinical) supervision is a practice that is gaining strength within professions covered by legislation designed to ensure competent professional practice. Examples include the requirements of the NZ Occupational Therapy Board's Code and the Social Workers Registration Board, which require evidence of professional supervision as part of demonstrating ongoing competence for continuing registration. The Health Practitioners Competence Assurance Act 2003 has a principal purpose to protect the health and safety of the public by ensuring that health practitioners are fit and competent to practise. The quality assurance components of this legislation have led to the health professions developing requirements for ongoing professional education and development.

Our programmes in professional supervision

Through our programmes, you will develop strong professional supervision skills, a sound understanding of the theoretical basis for professional supervision, and a commitment to the continuing development of other professionals.

Our programmes in professional supervision employ a range of assessment methods, including video work, peer feedback, reflective assignments, essays and reports. You will have access to a wide range of recent research on supervision, professional development and learning, and reflective practice. These programmes are designed for practising professionals and therefore offered on a part-time study basis.

Practitioners from a wide range of disciplines and experience will be able to enter these programmes including social workers, counsellors, RTLBs, psychologists, nurses and allied health professionals, medical practitioners and human services workers. These programmes will have immediate application to your current practice, and contribute to your professional development portfolio. In order to complete course requirements you will need to be currently practising in a health or social services setting.

As a graduate of our professional supervision programmes, you will be prepared for advanced professional responsibility as a supervisor in your chosen profession in health, counselling or human services and be able to demonstrate knowledge and skills in a range of approaches and interventions in supervision practice.

If you go on to complete the Postgraduate Diploma in Professional Supervision you will, in addition to the above attributes, be able to demonstrate a greater level of critical and analytical ability, and be able to apply a greater understanding of theory and research in professional learning to solving practice problems – in particular health, human and social services contexts – as is fitting with advanced professional practice and leadership.

Postgraduate Certificate in Professional Supervision

The PGCertProfSup consists of 60 points made up from the following two compulsory courses:

- PROFSUPV 700 The Practice of Professional Supervision
- PROFSUPV 701 Advanced Approaches in Professional Supervision

(Note: PROFSUPV 700 is a prerequisite to study PROFSUPV 701)

See pg. 15-17 for courses offered in 2013, timetables and course prescriptions.

Delivery: Block courses or selected dates (Epsom Campus). May include some online self-directed study.

Length: One to two years' part-time study.

Note: The points gained from this programme may be reassigned towards a Postgraduate Diploma in Professional Supervision if you decide to continue to postgraduate diploma level with your study.

Postgraduate Diploma in Professional Supervision

The PGDipProfSup provides opportunities to engage in further professional inquiry through a range of courses with a focus on leadership and practitioner development. It consists of 120 points made up from two compulsory courses (the same 60 points that comprise the Postgraduate Certificate in Professional Supervision) plus another 60 points from elective courses.

- 60 points PROFSUPV 700, 701
- 60 points from PROFSUPV 707, 711-717

See pg. 15-17 for courses offered in 2013, timetables and course prescriptions.

Delivery: Block courses or selected dates (Epsom and Tāmaki Campuses). May include some online self-directed study.

Length: One year fulltime study, or up to four years' part-time study.

Further study: If you also hold an approved social work qualification, you may be able to apply for direct entry into the second year of the Master of Social Work.

Entry criteria:

Admission requirements for both the PGCertProfSup and the PGDipProfSup are as follows:

- An approved bachelors degree.
- Be currently employed in health, counselling, social or human services or other appropriate professional context.
- Have at least three years' relevant professional experience.

Attention: Social Workers

If you are considering research at masters level (Master of Social Work), talk to your programme leader or student adviser about including a 30-point research methods course (eg, SOCWORK 718) as part of your PGDipProfSup.

With a PGDipProfSup that includes a research methods course and is completed with an average grade of B or higher, you can apply to enter directly into the second year of the Master of Social Work to undertake research in your chosen area of interest.

Social work

Undertaking further advanced study and research in social work builds your skills and confidence to move to the next level of your social work career and to lead change. Our goal is to provide the most up-to-date and research-informed postgraduate study experience in the field of Social Work. We do this in a supportive and inclusive environment that embraces students of all ages from a variety of professional and ethnic backgrounds.

The University of Auckland has been teaching Social Work for 30 years. This means we have a strong presence and reputation in the field and you will be taught by dedicated, research-active academic staff who are passionate about nurturing Social Work excellence in the community. We have particular strengths in research in supervision, health and mental health, and the study of trauma and resilience.

Our postgraduate Social Work programmes are designed for those already working in the field of professional Social Work. We know our students are busy professionals, so we deliver our postgraduate programmes through face-to-face block courses at Epsom Campus supported by online study guides and resources. Supervisors in your area of interest will support and guide you along the way as you work on your thesis or research portfolio.

We also offer the Master of Social Work (Professional) for graduates of social sciences subjects who want to become a qualified social worker.

Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) in Social Work

Doctoral research in social work aims to strengthen, legitimate and develop the diversity of this traditionally practice-based discipline. International trends over the past decade show a growing movement toward research-based practice in social work and this PhD paves the way for growing New Zealand research in this field.

Research activity is clustered into three areas: Evaluation and Effective Practice; Workforce Development; and Leadership and Management. The School of Counselling, Human Services and Social Work's social work research and supervision experience within these areas is diverse and includes expertise on clinical supervision, resilient practitioners, exploration of issues related to migrants and refugees, insight into trauma and resilience and work on social justice and child poverty.

Recognising the inter-disciplinary nature and breadth of research interests in social work, the Faculty of Education School of Counselling, Human Services and Social Work collaborates with academics within the Faculty of Medical and Health Sciences to provide a comprehensive range of potential supervisors and co-supervisors to support doctoral candidates.

The focus of this qualification is on an original piece of research that advances both scholarship and practice in social work. Your research will involve an in-depth investigation, with ongoing supervisor support, into questions, issues or problems that arise from the various disciplines relevant to social work. A PhD is excellent preparation for an academic career. It also enables candidates to provide leadership in their professional communities through the advancement and dissemination of knowledge, expertise and skills.

A PhD requires an extensive programme of independent study. It involves supervised study and research at an advanced level, culminating in the submission of a thesis and an oral examination of it. The PhD does not normally include coursework.

Length: Three to four years' fulltime study; a part-time study option is also offered.

Entry criteria:

- A bachelors or masters degree with First Class or Second Class (First Division) Honours from The University of Auckland (or an approved equivalent qualification).
- Demonstrate an ability to pursue doctoral level research.

If you are applying to study a PhD in Social Work, you must first complete an "Expression of Interest". Visit www.education.auckland.ac.nz/eoi

Master of Social Work

The MSW is a two-year (240-point) masters programme that provides the opportunity to gain a highly-regarded and credible postgraduate qualification that prepares you for advanced professional responsibility in social work as a manager, supervisor or team leader. You will learn advanced approaches and interventions in social work practice while developing valuable knowledge, enhanced skills and real experience in critiquing and undertaking social work research to enhance your practice.

The MSW programme enables you to undertake further study in subjects related to your professional practice and then undertake research in an area of special interest to you. Options for research include either a 120-point thesis (equivalent to one year of study) or a 90-point research portfolio, which might include a combination of the following elements: a literature review, an evaluation project, development of a new intervention or clinical or teaching resource and production of a journal article for submission.

The Master of Social Work consists of 240 points as follows:

Thesis option:

- 120 points from: EDPROFST 743, 744, PROFCOUN 704, PROFSUPV 700, 701, 710, 711, 712, 714, 715, 716, SOCCHFAM 731, 734, 735, 736, SOCHLTH 732, 751, 753, 754, 756, 757, SOCWORK 713, 718, 719, 752, 757, 758, 759, SOCYOUTH 733, 736

and

- 120 points: SOCWORK 796 (Thesis)

Research Portfolio option:

- 150 points from: EDPROFST 743, 744, PROFCOUN 704, PROFSUPV 700, 701, 710, 711, 712, 714, 715, 716, SOCCHFAM 731, 734, 735, 736, SOCHLTH 732, 751, 753, 754, 756, 757, SOCWORK 713, 718, 719, 752, 757, 758, 759, SOCYOUTH 733, 736

and

- 90 points: SOCWORK 797 (Research Portfolio)

Note: SOCWORK 718 Applied Research in Social Services is a requirement if a similar course has not been completed. An equivalent research methods course may be substituted from another subject, with the approval of the Academic Head.

See pg. 13-18 for courses offered in 2013, timetables and course prescriptions.

Delivery: This programme is designed with the unique needs of practising professionals in mind so you can balance work with study. Block courses or selected dates (Epsom Campus) supported by online

"I proudly identify myself as a social work professional and this masters degree is the next step in specialising in this discipline. The University of Auckland has always been my university of choice and it is well regarded internationally. I have enjoyed the flexible programme structure, supportive lecturers and learning alongside other peers in the field."

"My research is on Kaupapa Māori Supervision, a uniquely indigenous approach to supervision within Aotearoa. Supervision is an important 'best practice' component for social workers, and other health related disciplines, to focus on professional competence and professional development. My research will share knowledge and understanding of Kaupapa Māori Supervision from the perspective of supervisors who currently offer this form of supervision. This research has the potential to inform and influence health and social service providers regarding the development of supervision policy and supervision delivery to better support Māori practitioners in their day-to-day practice."

study guides and resources. The thesis or research portfolio will be carried out under the guidance of a supervisor. Workplace or clinical placements are not required.

Length: Two years' fulltime study, or up to four years' part-time study.

Entry criteria:

- A Bachelor of Social Work (or approved equivalent qualification) with an average grade of B or higher in at least 90 points (or equivalent) in the most advanced courses taken.

Note: It is possible to enter directly into the second year of the MSW if you hold a BSW(Hons), or if you hold either a Postgraduate Diploma in Professional Supervision (and an approved qualification in social work), a Postgraduate Diploma in Health Sciences - Social Work specialisation or Postgraduate Diploma in Social Work (or an approved equivalent qualification), with an average grade of B or higher.*

University of Auckland or approved equivalent.*

Postgraduate Diploma in Social Work

The PGDipSW is equivalent to the first year of the Master of Social Work (see pg. 10) and can be studied as a standalone qualification. You will learn advanced approaches and interventions in social work practice and examine current research in social work. You will build a strong knowledge base of the principles, concepts and ideas of advanced practice in professional social work in general and specialised contexts.

If you complete the PGDipSW and gain a grade point average of B or higher you can choose to continue on to the second year of the Master of Social Work to complete the masters qualification. You will need to have included a research methods course (SOCWORK 718 Applied Research in Social Services, or an approved equivalent) in your PGDipSW in order to do this.

The PGDipSW consists of 120 points selected from the following courses:

- EDPROFST 743, 744, PROFPCOUN 704, PROFSUPV 700, 701, 710, 711, 712, 714, 715, 716, SOCCHFAM 731, 734, 735, 736, SOCHLTH 732, 751, 753, 754, 756, 757, SOCWORK 713, 718, 719, 752, 757, 758, 759, SOCYOUTH 733, 736

See pg. 13-18 for courses offered in 2013, timetables and course prescriptions.

Delivery: Block courses or selected dates (Epsom and Tāmaki Campuses) supported by online study guides and resources.

Length: One year fulltime study, or up to four years' part-time study.

Entry criteria:

- A Bachelor of Social Work (or approved equivalent qualification).

Master of Social Work (Professional)

The MSW(Prof) is a two-year (240-point) masters degree that will prepare you for a professional career in social work. It is designed for people who want to become a qualified social worker and who already hold a general undergraduate degree with study in a relevant disciplinary area such as social sciences, sociology, psychology, criminology, health sciences or human services.

Social Work is a registered profession that helps individuals, families and communities to achieve their potential and deal with challenges. It is a complex, relationship-based profession and social workers can be found working in a wide spectrum of services including Child, Youth and Family Service, child and family support services, social workers in schools programmes, disability support services, hospitals, community health, mental health services, addiction services, problem gambling services, Justice – courts, prisons and probation service, and youth agencies.

Through this masters programme, you will:

- Gain essential knowledge and understanding of the values, theories and interventions that underpin social work practice.
- Learn the skills to be a critical and reflective practitioner who is able to contribute to any field of social work practice.

The MSW(Prof) includes the clinical practice experience needed to meet national and international professional requirements. It has been approved by the Social Workers Registration Board and meets the criteria for a recognised professional qualification under the Social Workers Registration Act 2003.

The Master of Social Work (Professional) consists of 240 points as follows:

Part I: 120 points: SOCWORK 721–725
Part II: 105 points: SOCWORK 711, 713, 734, 735, 739 and 15 points from SOCCHFAM 731, SOCHLTH 732 or SOCYOUTH 733

See pg. 13-18 for courses offered in 2013, timetables and course prescriptions.

Delivery: Epsom Campus. Courses are by weekly lecture, block or selected dates and include lectures, discussion, student presentations, skills laboratories, group work, individual research and investigation, and self-directed study.

120 days of supervised practicum work is also required. This is arranged and managed by the School of Counselling, Human Services and Social Work. Note that these fulltime practical placements are unpaid. The first placement is in Year One for 50 days and the second placement is for a longer 70 days in Year Two. During these placement periods you will be placed in a social service agency. Examples may include work in the following areas:

- Statutory child protection
- Family intervention
- Interpersonal and family violence
- Youth services, statutory and community
- Social work in schools
- Health social work

- Mental health
- Addictions
- Iwi-based, Māori and Pacific services
- Community development
- Disability services
- Women's organisations
- Community organisations and community social work in local councils
- Corrections and prisons
- Social policy

During these placements, you will receive weekly supervision within the agency. Field coordinators within the faculty will also maintain close contact and visit you at your agency to ensure that necessary learning outcomes are met. There will be several call back days when all students come back together on campus to discuss their reflections on professional social work practice that have arisen from their experiences.

Length: Two years' fulltime study, or up to four years' part-time study.

Entry criteria:

- An approved bachelors degree with a minimum of 60 points in social sciences subjects and an average grade of B or higher over 75 points in Stage III of the degree.
- An interview supported by referees' statements and evidence of suitability.

Note: Applicants need to be able to meet the requirements of the Social Workers Registration Act 2003. Applicants will be required to consent to a Police check.

A full driver licence is required to fulfill the practicum requirements for this programme and to work in this field. Applicants should ensure they have a full driver licence before starting this programme.

Further study:

Students who complete this masters degree with First Class or Second Class (Division I) Honours will be eligible to apply for entry into The University of Auckland PhD in Social Work. Other professional development for social workers is offered such as the Postgraduate Diploma in Professional Supervision and the Master of Social Work.

Bachelor of Social Work (Honours)

Note that the BSW(Hons) is not a standalone qualification. The BSW(Hons) forms part of the Bachelor of Social Work and students are selected into the honours programme for their fourth (final) year of study if they meet the entry criteria (ie, have completed 360 points in required courses from the BSW schedule, with an average grade of B or higher in 60 points above Stage 2).

Timetable for courses offered in 2013

Courses offered in 2013 are listed below. For full programme schedules refer pg. 6-12 or to The University of Auckland Calendar at www.auckland.ac.nz/calendar

Where a course is marked A and B, this is a full year course and you must complete both A and B parts of the course.

Fees and money matters

There are several options to fund your university study. There are a number of scholarships, awards and grants offered by The University of Auckland and other organisations, and student loans and allowances available through StudyLink.

Indicative tuition fees (sample shows 2012 fees)

Fees for 2013 will be set late in 2012. As a guide (only), tuition fees for 2012 Faculty of Education programmes are listed below, but expect some adjustment for 2013.

Programme	Domestic Students	International Students
Postgraduate certificate	$782.10 per 15 point course	$3,420 per 15 point course
Postgraduate diploma	$1,564.20 per 30 point course	$6,840 per 30 point course
Masters degree
Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)	$5,782 per 12 months fulltime	$5,782 per 12 months fulltime*
Doctor of Education (EdD)	$5,782 per 12 months fulltime	$32,160 per 12 months fulltime

*New international PhD students will be accorded domestic status for the purposes of tuition fees, subject to supervisory and residency requirements.

The first two years of the EdD are part-time, so it may not be appropriate for international students who need to study fulltime to meet student visa requirements.

Note: Tuition fees may be higher where courses at a higher level are selected or required, or where courses from other faculties are chosen.

All of these fees are charged on a per-point basis, so students pay fees proportional to the number of course points they take each semester.

In addition to tuition fees, a Student Services Fee is also charged. In 2012, this fee was $5.74 per point. Expect some adjustment for 2013.

When fees for 2013 are set, updated information will be available at www.auckland.ac.nz/fees

Scholarships and awards

The University of Auckland offers a wide range of scholarships, awards and bursaries for postgraduate studies at all levels.

Visit the Scholarships and Financial Support Office website www.auckland.ac.nz/scholarships to search scholarships available and for detailed information, including criteria, closing dates and application forms. It pays to investigate funding possibilities as early as possible, so you know what you may be eligible for and when applications are due.

There are also many external organisations that offer scholarships and awards. The Scholarships Office can also provide access to a comprehensive database of external scholarships to give you information about the widest range of funding available.

Student loans and allowances

Student loans and allowances are administered by StudyLink, a service of the Ministry of Social Development. Visit www.studylink.govt.nz for eligibility and other details, or phone 0800 88 99 00.

Course prescriptions

Course prescriptions for courses offered in 2013 are listed below. Where a course is marked A and B, you must complete both A and B parts of the course. All courses listed below are assessed by 100% coursework.

For information for all other courses refer to The University of Auckland Calendar, which can be viewed online at www.auckland.ac.nz/calendar.

For some courses you will be required to have access to compulsory texts. You will be advised in your first lecture of the resources and texts required, or you can contact the course coordinator if you would like to discuss these requirements in advance. Details of the course coordinator/lecturer for each course will be updated online at www.education.auckland.ac.nz/pg-study-options

Education

EDUC 769 15 Points Special Topic: Counselling and Spirituality

Wellbeing and holistic health include the process of meaning-making in clients' mental, physical, volitional, relational, vocational, and spiritual sense of self. This intensive course will focus on defining spiritual wellbeing, in its broadest sense, and the counsellor's role in working with spiritual issues. Some people understand religion and spirituality to be interchangeable terms; this course will take the position that being religious is only one way of being spiritual. Spirituality will be defined in line with Irvin D. Yalom's seminal book, Existential Psychotherapy (1980), focusing on ways that people live out their spirituality within larger communities of nurture. Ways in which a counsellor can support clients in spiritual growth and integration will be explored.

Professional Counselling

PROFCOUN 701A 7.5 Points PROFCOUN 701B 7.5 Points

Counselling Laboratory

An intensive 'laboratory' in which students work in small groups, to develop skills and strategies for the facilitation of counselling processes. To complete this course students must enrol in PROFCOUN 701 A and B

PROFCOUN 707 15 Points Specialist Counselling Skills and Approaches

An advanced examination of the specialist counselling skills and knowledge required to work effectively with clients from a wide range of contexts and experiences. Topics may include working with sexual abuse, family violence, trauma, anxiety, depression, self-harm, suicidality, and loss and grief. The course will focus on the integration of theory, research and practice, and the development of working models to facilitate effective counselling.

PROFCOUN 797A 60 Points PROFCOUN 797B 60 Points

Research Portfolio

A supervised programme of coherent research activity related to 500 hours of counselling practice undertaken concurrently. The research portfolio will reflect the research and professional knowledge, understanding and skills developed during the course of the programme. It will include three case studies and other components reflecting additional, research-related activities, to be determined individually in consultation with the supervisor.

Prerequisite:EDPROFST 750

To complete this course students must enrol in PROFCOUN 797 A and B

How to apply

Choose your programme

Visit www.education.auckland.ac.nz/programmes or contact us for any information you need.

Check the application closing dates and entry requirements

Visit www.auckland.ac.nz/admission

Apply for a place in a programme

- Go to www.apply.auckland.ac.nz
- Sign up for a new account (unless you already have an account).
- Complete the Application for Admission.

You will receive an acknowledgement email asking you to provide specific certified documents (and in some cases to complete other requirements) before your application can be assessed.

We'll also send you a Student ID number. You can use this to sign into your Application for Admission, check your application status and see the documentation you need to provide.

You will also need to complete a Supplementary Information Form (SIF). You can download this from the Application for Admission.

Submit your supporting documents

Once we receive your completed SIF and certified documents we can then assess your application.

Please be aware that documents can take three to four weeks to process during peak admission periods. If you have sent in all your admission documents at one time, some will take longer to process and be updated in the system than others.

Interview

Interviews are not generally required for postgraduate programmes but may apply for some programmes. If this applies to you, after you have completed the online Application for Admission and we have received your Supplementary Information Form (SIF), you will be contacted and given a date if selected for an interview.

Offer of place

If your application is successful, we'll email you an offer of place.

You can check the status of your Application for Admission at any time by signing in using your Student ID and password. Go to www.apply.auckland.ac.nz

You may receive a conditional offer but final approval will be dependent on fulfilment of the conditions of admission to BOTH the University and the programme.

Accept your offer of place

Sign into your Application for Admission (www.apply.auckland.ac.nz) and accept or decline your offer of place.
