EDUC 114 – INTRODUCTION TO MĀORI EDUCATION (15 POINTS)

Semester One (1183)

Course Prescription

An introduction to Māori education and to the education of Māori in Aotearoa. A range of critical issues related to Māori experiences both in and as a result of schooling and education in Aotearoa, and Māori educational interventions that have emerged, are examined.

Programme and Course Advice

Restriction: EDUC 103, EDPROFST 100

Goals of the Course

This course provides a multidisciplinary and critical investigation of Māori education via a historical, social and cultural lens. The course commences with an overview of the first mission schools and the native schools within the colonisation period. The course then explores the Māori Renaissance with its emphasis on cultural and language revitalisation and the growth of Māori medium education initiatives such as kohanga reo, kura kaupapa Māori and Wānanga Māori. The course also introduces students to key theorists within kaupapa Māori and bicultural education within Aotearoa/New Zealand.

Learning Outcomes

At the completion of this course, it is intended that students will be able to:

1. Discuss both historical and contemporary Māori experiences in schooling and education in Aotearoa.
2. Understand and articulate a range of critical issues in Māori education.
3. Demonstrate an understanding of key theorists in education and kaupapa Māori theory.
