Thank you for registering to donate your body to the Human Body Bequest Programme at the University of Auckland. Bodies bequeathed are accepted under the Human Tissue Act 2008 and are used for anatomical examination and research in the training of medical students, surgeons, anaesthetists, nurses, physiotherapists and other health professionals. You are making a very generous gift to the field of medical education.

While we make every effort to accept your bequest, circumstances may prevent this being done. The final acceptance of any bequest must necessarily remain at the discretion of the Human Body Bequest Programme and cannot be confirmed until the time of death. Therefore it is important that you ensure that your next-of-kin know what alternative arrangements you would wish if we are unable to accept your bequest.

Please complete the Donor Registration Form below. You should inform your family, GP and lawyer of your wishes to donate your body.
