Study and Research Skills Hubs: Canvas integration

A guide for staff on integrating the Library’s study and research skills hubs into Canvas courses.

About the hubs
Te Tumu Herenga | Libraries and Learning Services have recently developed faculty-based Study and Research Skills Hubs. These have been designed to support students’ academic skills development, building upon the resources provided in Learning essentials.

The content covers transferrable skills required for completing assignments, including resources on finding information, writing, referencing and more. These are self-directed online learning tools that students can use at point of need.

These hubs were released in January 2022 and we actively seek your feedback.

Accessing the hubs
All hubs are in Canvas and can be used by anyone with a university login. The hub can be accessed from Learning essentials: learningessentials.auckland.ac.nz/learning-at-university/academic-skills-in-your-discipline/

Linking to hubs in Canvas courses
Use announcements in Canvas to highlight specific information that assists students with current course related tasks. The hubs or modules/pages within the hubs can be embedded in Canvas using the following options:

- Add as a link within a module
- Add as a link on an existing page
1. Add as a link within a module
   Link to specific resources within the hub in relevant weeks during the semester. Utilise Canvas modules to do this.

2. Add as a link on an existing page:
   Add the URL to an existing page using the insert link option

If you have any questions regarding a hub or embedding it in your Canvas course please use this form.
